Using Start-to-Finish Online Accessible Library for Fluency Practice

Start-to-Finish Publishing furnishes educators with the tools to help struggling readers build fluency skills. It allows struggling learners to practice reading and decoding skills at their own pace. Learners achieve fluency, understand what they read and ask to read more. This practice provides administrators and teachers with reports on quiz results that they can use to make data-driven decisions. These decisions help improve learner achievement across the curriculum.

Matching Students to Text

Learners who are still struggling with reading when they reach the upper elementary, middle and high school grades can benefit from Start-to-Finish Online Accessible Library Fluency Practice. Start-to-Finish Online Accessible Library is designed for learners with reading levels of 2nd through 5th grade.

Computer Lab and Classroom Implementation

Computer Lab Environment
- Read daily or 3 times a week in Computer Lab (whole class)

Classroom Environment
- Read daily, rotating small groups among stations

A typical chapter takes approximately 10 minutes to read and perform the assessment exercises.

☑ Computer Checklist

☐ Did I make pre-arrangements to have computers for my program?

☐ Is there an Internet connection on each computer being used in the program?

☐ Do I have enough computers and headphones?
Individual Learning Plan

Start-to-Finish Text:
- Gold 2nd-3rd grade
- Blue 4th-5th grade

Reading Goal:
- High Interest
- Tied to Curriculum
- By Genre

How to Use Start-to-Finish® Online Accessible Library to Build Fluency
Reading Routines/Strategies

BEFORE Reading:

- Teach Reading Strategy
- Provide Computer Access
- Give Learners Instructions

Fluency Building Strategies:

- Subvocalizing (i.e., quietly reading along with the computer book).
- Reading aloud to the teacher one-on-one as she circulates.
- Repeated Reading (i.e., read a page 2 times, 3 times, etc., determined by the teacher).
- Paired reading with the computer. (Listening while reading)
- Hear it, Read it (i.e., listen to the passage as it is read aloud by the computer and then read the passage on your own).

AFTER Reading:

- Evaluate Start-to-Finish Quizzes
- Give Fluency Probes
- Use Data to Alter Instruction
Create and Use a Fluency Probe

A Fluency Probe is a tool for measuring your learners’ rate of reading fluency.

The Fluency Probe should contain a passage that the reader has not seen before. You can either provide your own text for the fluency passage, or use a passage from Start-to-Finish that the learner has not read yet.

Tip

You can create your own fluency probes using programs on the web. For example: http://interventioncentral.org/htmdocs/tools/okapi/okapi.php

This is how you use a Fluency Probe:

Before you start:
- Make two copies of the Fluency Probe – one for you and one for the learner.
- Have a stopwatch or timer to time the learners as they read for one minute.

Administering the Fluency Probe:
- Tell the learner you will time the reading for one minute.
- During the timed reading, if the learner stops reading, tell the learner the word after three seconds. This is counted as an error.
- When one minute has passed, stop your timer to indicate to the learner that the probe is complete.
- Note any errors on your copy of the fluency passage. Errors include: mispronunciations, substitutions, skipped words and learner being told the word. Self-corrections and re-readings are not errors.

After the Fluency Probe:
- Mark on your copy of the Fluency Probe where the learner stopped.
- Calculate the words correct per minute by counting the words read correctly during the probe.

Tip

If you notice that a learner who is reading a Blue Level book is struggling, change to a Gold Level book. If you notice that a learner who is reading a Gold Level book is mastering it, change to a Blue Level book.

Fluency and Comprehension Key

Learner Data Shows Instructional Decisions

Fluency rate is not increasing
- Try different Fluency Building strategies.
- Have learners listen to smaller chunks, then read.
- Preview text with learner and look for words the learner might struggle with.
- Look for text with lower readability.

Fluency is increasing but the learners are not comprehending the text
- Dialog with learners prior to reading to activate and build background knowledge.
- Talk to learner about what is happening.
- Explicitly teach key comprehension strategies.

Learner is re-taking quizzes or scoring low on quizzes
- Discuss how the narrator uses prosody. Point out how narrator uses punctuation. Then have the learner repeat read these samples.
- Model how to read with prosody, then have the learner read the text.
- Have learners find passages where the narrator had good examples of prosody. Then practice them and share with teacher or peer.
How much have I read?
